

SUMMARY

The invention is intended to facilitate language learning by facilitating the learning of phonology and phonetics in general and, in particular, prosody. For said purpose, the pupil is trained to better 5 perceive the rhythm and metric structure of the target language. The aforementioned training consists in listening to determined auditory playbacks using facilitating means which enable the pupil to better identify the prosodic features of the target language, and to develop his/her capacity to identify same.